Use of Eagle Down , p̄ə1.əəkwɛ ✓

Bryson, 1916, g. txa'ā notes

Welcome
War

The term used for the soft white eagle down. It was used by a chief when an invited chief came into the house. The host would put on a headdress full of down, which would fly in the air as he danced, showing "good feeling and friendliness".

War It was also used in warfare, but then it would issue from the smoke hole showing that the house was prepared for war and it would be dangerous for anyone to approach.
