"...there were formerly two or three other places where Haidas were resident on the west coast of the islands....
A village was situated on the island called Hippa by Dixon, of which the Haida name was, I believe, Mus-too. Dixon gives a sketch... Hippah....

p. 171. "The last village of which I have any knowledge, stood formerly on or very near Frederick Island of the maps. Its name, or that of the island, was Susk or Sisk. It is reputed to have been populous, but may never have been very important.
