"The Piteh-people (Q!ās /ā'nas) occupied much of the northwestern coast of Moresby island between Tas-oo harbor and Karsun, but, when the Sealim-town people moved to the west coast, they seem to have driven the Piteh-people out of their northern towns. They were always looked upon as an uncultivated branch of Haida, and are said not to have possessed any crests. Later they intermarried with the Cumshewa people - - -"
